STRIKING INTERIOR VIEW

During the Senstorial struggle at Char leston, last winter, it was more than once asked whether the relations between Mr. Camden and Mr. Keuna were as cordial sa they had been. The friends of each said the relations were all right. Later i was noked whether Mr. Kenna could afford to antagonize all those who were opposing Mr. Camden. To this it was answered orday, making five in the two days of that Mr. Kenna would do as much for Mr. Camden as he would do for himself, not only because he felt he would certainly have to fight the same crowd when his own election came up, but because he and Mr. Camden stood for the same things in the Democratic party, Moreover it was said that Mr. Kenna was a chivalrous man The Capitol clock was dark hat high and the gar in the Second ward market burned very dimly and fitfully. For instance, they said, when it became apparent beyond all doubt that Mr. Camden's election, if accomplished at all, would be at the extension of the said, when it became apparent beyond all complished at all, would be at the extension of the said complished at all, would be at the extension of the said when the said was all the said of the said of the said was all the said of the said of the said was also remarked that that there was yet time for Mr. Kenna to get in some work to straighten himself up with the most active and least releating of Mr. Camden's ensities, and that he was probably smart is enough to begin at this point to look as somewhat to his own future. "Kenna," they said, "is young, and if the State of doesn't flop he has a future before him. I think Camden was then of that opinion, though I do not suppose that such an admission could be wrung from him even new. Thet may come later. You must remember that the mon who defeated Camden, while they may not be able to elect, as they were not last witter, may be as nowerful as they were then to deleat. as powerful as they were then to defeat That would be all the same to Kenna Now, Kenna is smart and cuave, and who Now, Keana is smart and cuave, and who knows but he may make a 'combine' with thevery men who defeated Camden? SOME LOGAL COMPLICATIONS.

The recent election of a committeeman to represent the First District in the place of Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller is regarded as showing Mr. Kenna's hand in the attitude of defiant aggressiveness. One view of it is best given in the language of an active and intelligent Democrat of this city:

"Feeling over it! Well, I should say so. Commissioner Miller seems to have the Transfers Recorded.

Clerk Hook yesterday admitted to record a deed made December 20, 1886, by Samuel Reed and wite to John, David and Joseph Reed, their sons, on certain conditions and considerations, for 329 acres of land in Triadelphis district on the waters of Middle Wheeling creek.

"Feeling over it! Well, I should say so. Commissioner Miller seems to have the unhappy faculty of giving his party friends plenty of trouble.

"It appears that Tom Darrah, of Municipal Court fame, was promised the place by Taney, Bob Simpson and others. Indeed so confident was Tom of securing the appointment, that he declined with becoming dignity to accompany Pete Ferrell to Parkersburg. The report now is that Taney, Simpson and Attorney General Caldwell went back on the late Clerk of the Municipal Court; in fact it is broadly stated that it never was the intention to give him the place, but to only use him to kill off Sheriff Handlan.

Sheriff Handlan is disgusted and is understood to have said it will never do to put boys ju the places that men should occupy, and that nothing but the blunders of the Republicane can give us the State in 1888. Tom Darrah's latest in a mixed crowd was about as follows: 'I have served the Democratic party faithfully in places of trust and honor for the past twenty years, and now I am cast fally in places of trust and honor for the past twenty years, and now I am cast aside and a young and comparatively unknown Irishman from the Republican county of Marshall is preferred before me.' And so it goes. Poor Tom, his connection with the Register flag on Grand Army day was not sufficient to save him."
